

Public Speaking Winners

Congratulations to Stamford International University (Thailand)! Recently, two very talented students from the university, Mr. Phillip Songkran Upton and Ms. Hataichanok Chantaluksuk won the National Public Speaking Competition 2011, hosted by The Ministry of Education, in collaboration with the English Speaking Union. The competition is held annually to search for the best English language public speaker from high schools and universities from all across Thailand. In May, Mr. Phillip and Ms. Hataichanok will represent Thailand at the International Public Speaking Competition in the United Kingdom.

Excellent Accreditation

The German "Bund-Länder-Inspektion" (BLI - the joint federal and provincial inspection organization), inspected the Swiss School Bangkok during the week 21st - 25th March 2011 to establish a comprehensive report on the Quality of the School, which was presented to representatives of the Embassies, the school management, students and parents on Friday 25th March 2011.

During the inspection at the school all "actors" involved were thoroughly interviewed in regard to each aspect of life at school: students, parents, teachers, non-teaching staff, school management and administration, as well as members of the school board. And during the presentation it became very clear that Swiss School Bangkok was without any exception positively evaluated in all areas. Especially good results were pointed out in areas such as: Strengthening of students' personality, school satisfaction, customer service, participation of students and parents, management responsibilities by the school management.

The result of the "Bund-Länder-Inspektion (BLI) represents for Swiss School Bangkok an important step in the continuous quality process. It provides the school with valuable information and further development potential and confirms that Swiss School Bangkok is not only a good but even an excellent school.
